

Manesha Johnson MSN RN

Manesha has over 14 years of nursing experience with 8 years of experience in development and implementation of patient education programs. Manesha has experience in Medical Surgical Nursing, Nephrology Nursing, Disease Management and Utilization Review. During her years of experience Manesha has assisted in the development and implementation of several patient education programs aimed at improving patient outcomes. She currently works at a pharmaceutical company in the role of Patient Educator for patients with IPF.

Manesha received her undergraduate degree in nursing at Marymount University. She then went on to complete her graduate degree at Walden University with a concentration in healthcare administration and education.

Manesha is a Washington, DC metro area native where she resides with her three children, Makayla, Larry and Landyn.