

Food Laws & Regulations: A Practical Road Map

March 22-23, 2018 • Chicago, IL USA

Full Course Description

This newly redesigned course provides participants with a roadmap to the essential US food regulatory resources. This course will provide attendees with the tools to meet their specific challenges, including hands-on activity-based explorations of the complex regulatory landscape. The instructors will touch on a broad range of food and food products, making this course especially useful for those new to food laws and regulations, or those who need to brush up on the basics fast.

This course examines the contemporary statutory, regulatory, and policy framework that affects food and beverage manufacturers. Expert practitioners in legal requirements and policy expectations explore and discuss the landscape of public policy through carefully-chosen case studies. This approach will emphasize the practical, real-life implications of rules and policy, including who authorizes, manages, and implements policy. The instructors will help participants pinpoint best practices in dealing with the myriad challenges of regulatory compliance, including discussing techniques to leverage rules for new opportunities and innovation. The course will be capped with a digital online tour of the agencies that impact food regulations and a hands-on interactive look at the resources that guide their application.
