

Sampson Davis, M.D.

Highly Skilled Emergency Medicine Physician, New York Times Best-selling Author and Frequent Medical Expert on TODAY and CNN.

Dr. Sampson Davis was raised as the fifth of six children in Newark, one of New Jersey's poorest cities. As a child, Davis grew up in cramped living quarters, surrounded by fragmented families, crime and drugs. Still, he was a good student, able to strike the fragile balance between being smart yet socially acceptable on the streets. It was this combination of skills, Davis says, that were most critical to his survival.

While attending University High School in Newark, Davis met Dr. Rameck Hunt and Dr. George Jenkins, two fellow students who together made a promise to become doctors. Davis and his two childhood friends each successfully fulfilled their pact and today Davis is a board certified emergency medicine physician.

In February 2013, Davis released his latest book, Living and Dying in Brick City: An E.R. Doctor Returns Home. In addition to discussing Davis' riveting medical stories and experiences in the ER, the book also offers preventative suggestions as a means of supporting healthier communities.

Davis has appeared on numerous talk and radio shows, including The Oprah Winfrey Show, TODAY, The Dr. Oz Show, PBS NewsHour, The View, Scott Simon's Weekend Edition Saturday on NPR and Tavis Smiley, as well as print publications including but not limited to Reader's Digest, O, The Oprah Magazine, People, Washington Post, New York Times, USA Today and Parade.

Ms. Winfrey also delivered the highest honor naming Davis one of "The Premiere Role Models of the World."

Davis was honored in 2000 with ESSENCE's Lifetime Achievement Award and also named one of their forty most inspirational African Americans in the country. He is the youngest physician to receive the National Medical Association's highest honor, the Scroll of Merit, and was previously honored on the 2009 BET Awards.

Today, Davis spends his time practicing medicine and traveling the country delivering keynote speeches with timely messages. Davis believes it is important to give education a sense of style and fashion. To glorify and glamorize education is the key. A face must be present, a concrete image that all individuals across America can draw inspiration from. Davis considers his 3 Ds—Dedication, Determination and Discipline—as the necessary ingredients to success.

Graduating with honors, Davis received his bachelor’s degree from Seton Hall University, his medical degree from Robert Wood Johnson Medical School and completed his residency in emergency medicine at the same hospital where he was born, Newark Beth Israel Medical Center.

Today, Davis practices emergency medicine at several hospitals in New Jersey. He has been a weekly contributor on the Tom Joyner Morning Show and a frequent guest on CNN and TODAY, highlighting prevalent and life-changing medical topics. Davis has also co-authored three New York Times best-selling books entitled The Pact, We Beat the Street and The Bond.

In 2000, during his residency, Davis and his best friends felt the burning need to give back to communities in need, and together created The Three Doctors Foundation (threedoctorsfoundation.org). This non-profit organization offers a series of free public programs focused on health, education, leadership and mentoring.
