

Professor James Wilsdon

James Wilsdon is Professor of Research Policy and Director of Impact and Engagement in the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Sheffield. Since 2013, he has been Chair of the UK's Campaign for Social Science. He also chaired the independent review of the role of metrics in the management of the UK's research system, which published its final report "The Metric Tide" in July 2015. Previously, James worked as Professor of Science and Democracy at University of Sussex and Director of Science Policy at the Royal Society. He is an editor of the Guardian's 'Political Science' blog on science and research policy, and a regular contributor to Wonkhe. In 2015, he was elected a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences. You can find him on twitter @jameswilsdon.