POSITIVE APPROACH TO BRAIN CHANGE

“When people ask me how to know it’s time to move a loved one into a senior care community, I usually tell them: 3 months ago.” - Teepa Snow

As a loving and devoted caregiver of a person living with dementia, it can be hard to know when it is time to transition your loved one into a senior care community with professional care staff.

Join us for one or both workshops and learn with Teepa what the options are, and how to avoid common issues when it’s time to move:

Transitioning into a Senior Care Community: Why, When, and How?

Learn with Teepa

- About signs that it might be time to look for a senior care community with professional care staff
- How to best talk with your loved about the move and protect his/her feelings and dignity
- Which items and paperwork to collect to make the transition as smooth as possible
- Strategies and tips to make your loved one feel comfortable and ‘at home’ in their new environment

Monday, December 12th, 2016, 9am-12pm

Tickets:

Early registration: $35 per person
At the door: $45 per person

Incl. light breakfast & 3 CEUs*

Selecting the Best Care Level for Your Loved One

Learn with Teepa

- About the difference between Independent Living, Memory Care, Assisted Living, Skilled Nursing, and more
- How to determine which level of care would be best to address the needs of your loved one
- Which signs & signals indicate that a move to a higher level of care might be needed
- How staff & families can help to make the move between care levels a little less stressful
