

Dr Lo Bianco is Professor of Language and Literacy Education, in the Melbourne Graduate School of Education.

He is Past President, Australian Academy of the Humanities

Current academic research and policy activities include

UNICEF Research Director, Language, Education and Social Cohesion, Malaysia, Myanmar/Burma and Thailand; and Preparation of Peace Building National Language Policy, Myanmar;

Academic advisor, National Research Centre for Foreign Language Education at Beijing Foreign Studies University;

Research advisor for LUCIDE, an EC project on Languages in Urban Communities, a 4 year research project on multilingualism at the municipal level in 12 European cities;

Immediate Past and Inaugural President of the Tsinghua, Asia Pacific Forum on Translation and Intercultural Studies;

130 publications on language, policy and planning, language education, literacy, culture and identity.

In press are Aldo and the Meridian Line, a novel in the Mountain of Su Dongpo series, (with T. Hay and Y. Wang) and a volume on Language and Identity in Post-Revolutionary Tunisia (with Fethi Hilal).